INTRODUCTION

After several years of planning and negotiation, the Monastic Manuscript Microfilm Library (MMML) began in 1964, with the generous support of the Louis W. and Maud Hill Family Foundation of Saint Paul, Minnesota, as a project to microfilm all medieval manuscripts dating before the year 1600 belonging to European monastic libraries. To date, more than seven thousand manuscripts have been photographed, totalling over three and a half million pages, from nineteen monastic libraries in Austria. In approximately a year and a half, microfilming operations will be completed in Austria.

Since selectivity was not a factor in the procedure in microfilming all codices prior to 1600, the need for a checklist of this type would seem to be superfluous. However, in addition to the purpose that this list might serve to persons wishing to keep a record of manuscripts consulted in their research, there are other reasons that a checklist may be useful. Manuscripts which have been sold or have vanished somehow during the past century, even though described in catalogs and inventories, could not, of course, have been micro-filmed. Others could not be photographed because the inner margin was too tight or badly damaged. Moreover, new acquisitions and manuscripts over-looked at the time the catalog or inventory was prepared have been included. In some few cases, exceptions were made and later codices photographed.

The first part of the Checklist for Austrian monastic libraries in-cludes six collections in Oberösterreich (Kremsmünster, Lambach, Reichers-berg, Sankt Florian, Schlägl and Wilhering) and ten in Niederösterreich. Among the collections represented, six are Benedictine, four Cistercian, Four Canons Regular of St. Augustine, one Premonstratensian and one diocesan library, at St. Pölten, formerly a monastic collection belonging to the Canons Regular of St. Augustine.

The codex numbers constituting the checklist are the officially accepted ones by which the individual codices are identified and cited. Old numbers and shelf marks are supplied in parentheses where applicable. Each micro-filmed manuscript in MMML is on a separate reel; and each reel is assigned a project number which is also supplied in this list. This will facilitate locating the microfilmed codex in MMML. In some cases, no number has been given to codices; in these instances, a brief identifying title is given. Included for reference are the number of manuscripts filmed at each library, any catalogs or inventories which are found in MMML, and the Latin name of the monastery's vernacular name.

The second part of the Checklist for Austrian monastic collections will be made available when microfilming operations in Austria are completed. This part will include, among others, Altenburg, Geras, Graz. Zentralbibliothek der Wiener Franziskanerprovinz, Güssing. Franziskanerkloster, Rein, Vorau and Zwettl.

As microfilming operations are completed in other countries, checklists will become available.

This Checklist and the ones to follow are intended as an accurate guide to the composite collections of photographed manuscripts which form MMML. It is hoped that they will be a convenience to scholars who can consult the lists without having to write to ascertain whether a particular codex is available on microfilm

Collegeville, 1 August 1967

Of the nearly 1100 manuscripts of this Benedictine monastic library, 543 have been microfilmed for MMML. A Xerox copy of the handwritten catalog by V. Werl, Manuscripten-Catalog der Stifts-Bibliothek zu Göttweig, 1844, is in MMML. For colored plates of some codices, see Der Heilige Altmann, Bischof von Passau, sein Leben und sein Werk, Festschrift zur 900-Jahr-Feier, hrsg. von Abtei Göttweig, 1965.

Codex Typicus 1 (Gratianus)	6237

The collection of manuscripts in this Benedictine monastic library is divided into several classes, each with its own numbering, which is to say, with its own catalog.
There are no indices to these catalogs. The designations of the Kremsmünster codices are as follows: I. Codices Cremifanenses. This is the body of the collection which originally contained 416 Mss. Some are now missing; others have been sold. A Xerox copy of the printed part of the catalog by Hugo Schmid, Catalogus codicum Manuscriptorum in Bibliotheca Monasterii Cremifanensis Ord. S. Bened. asservatorum, vol. I, fasc.
1-3 (Linz, 1877-81) which covers only the first ten manuscripts is in MMML. The remainder of the collection are described in Bibliotheca Cremifanensis, Catalogus Manuscriptorum, Excerpt by P. Beda Lehner from a draft by P. Hugo Schmid. II. Codices Cremifanenses (Schatzkasten). This part of the collection contains 12 Mss. and a manuscript roll (volumen) which bears no number. They are described in the above-mentioned Bibliotheca Cremifanensis. III. Codices Cremifanenses (Fragmenta), Schachtel 1 and Schachtel 2. No catalog available. IV. Codices Cremifanenses novi.
Of the 1,358 Mss. in this group, 17 items dating before 1600 were microfilmed for MMML. They are described in the handwritten catalog, Bibliotheca Cremifanensis, Catalogus Manuscriptorum, Codices novi, a Xerox copy of which is in MMML. V. Codices Cremifanenses. These include recent acquisitions to which numbers have not yet been assigned. Latin name: Cremifanensis.

Bischöfl. Alumnats-Bibliothek (des Priesterseminars)

The manuscripts of this collection constitute the remains of a former monastic library. A monastery was founded by the Benedictines of Tegernsee in the last half of the 8th century. Sometime later it was taken over by the Canons Secular. In 1084, it was taken over by the Canons Regular of St. Augustine and was known until its dissolution in 1784 as Chorherrenstift St. Pölten. There is no catalogue of manuscripts. Latin name: Sanhippolytensis.
